RAYMOND ROBINS ON BOL-SHEVISM.

Colonel Raymond Robins was the head of the Red Cross mission in Russia, and in that capacity had many dealings with the bolshevik government. It has been charged, as the man who reads the papers knows, that Colonel Robins was a bolshevik sympathizer. In view of his testimony before the Overman committee Colonel Robins is entitled to a dismissal of that charge.

It was believed by many of the bolshevik sympathizers in this country that Raymond Robins would speak well of the Russian tribe, and in that belief they solicited the Overman committee to hear what he had to say. His testimony did not warrant the opinion upon which it was solicited by the friends of bolshevism.

Colonel Robins stated that he did not believe either Lenin or Trotsky to be pro-German. He stated also that in his opinion some of the stories of bolshevik atrocities were greatly exaggerated. The first of these statements will hardly counter-balance the evidences of pro-Germanism that have repeatedly come to the public knowledge during the past two years. As to the latter statement, suffice to say that the acts of wholesale atrocity about which there can be no question have been sufficiently bloody and terrible to waive the question of exaggeration with respect to any of the stories that have been sent out by enterprising correspondents.

As to bolshevism—the thing itself—Colonel Robins speaks in no uncertain terms of condemnation and warning. There is no equivocation whatever. It is a menace greater and more terrible than pro-Germanism—or even Hunism, as we may understand. It is a menace, to the understanding and defeat of which every power of civilization must be summoned. Such in conclusive effect is the testimony of Raymond Robins.

Colonel Robins holds that to understand bolshevism is an essential preliminary to its defeat. The only effectual way in which we can prevent the spread of the poison. It is a propaganda to establish government upon class hatred; to overthrow all governments except those that may rest on that insecure and impossible foundation. It embodies no economic possibility and has not a moral virtue to commend it. Yet in the Russian laboratory of chaotic ignorance, destitution and disorganization this thing has been developed to a power and virulence which threatens the civilized world.

Without publicity as to the character of bolshevism is one of the imperative duties which Colonel Robins believes devolves upon this country. He urges that the Overman committee publish a report that shall set forth just what bolshevism is; for to reveal this thing to American understanding is to expose it to American hatred and utter condemnation. Such a course Mr. Robins believes would forever prevent the spread of this barbarous propaganda. He adds that "if this is followed by intelligent legislation to correct what is wrong in our civilization, it would wipe out the breeding spots of our unrest. It may be said that the American public conscience is our saving grace in that respect."

Colonel Robins urges that we have another duty in the premises. Bolshevism has grown in Russia upon the demand there for a "better human life." Mr. Robins urges that the way to overcome the evil thing which has sprung from that demand, or thrived by reason of it is not with bayonets, but with the conditions that will tend to satisfy the legitimate demand. That means an American economic mission in Russia that will help the people to the way of obtaining the necessities of life, and will disclose to them the devilish, the atrocious and the utterly destructive character of this bolshevism which has the entire country by the throat, and is strangling the very life out of it.—Telegram.

ATLANTA BUSINESSMAN IS ENTHUSED

SINCE TAKING TANLAC ALMAMD SAYS HE FEELS AS WELL AS HE EVER DID

"If you had seen me before I began taking Tanlac you would hardly believe me to be the same person," said A. F. Almond, a well-known seed merchant of 2713 Peters street, Atlanta, Ga.

"For more than a year," he continued, "I suffered terribly with stomach trouble. After eating anything I would always have gas on my stomach and would constantly belch up my sour, undigested food. I suffered with heartburn constantly and was extremely nervous, my liver was sluggish and I was bilious, too. I felt tangled and tired out most of the time and often felt so bad that I could hardly attend to my business properly. "I heard so many people praising Tanlac that I began taking it, too, and by the time I had finished my second bottle I had gained nineteen pounds. I never suffer now with heartburn or indigestion and am not nervous like I was before. I sleep well and get up in the morning feeling fine and ready for a hard day's work." Tanlac is sold in Klamath Falls by the Star Drug Co., and in LaGrange by the James Merc. Co.—Adv. Reduce your surplus weight in the swimming tank at the Hot Springs Bath House.
